TORT (PLAINTIFF): PERSONAL INJURY, PRODUCT AND MEDICAL LIABILITY

With a focus on lawsuits involving catastrophic personal injury and wrongful death claims, Michael Lyons and Christopher Simmons have earned a reputation for obtaining record-setting results for their clients across the United States.

Lyons and Simmons are devoted to representing people who have the deck stacked against them and are known for the care, compassion, and respect they extend to their clients. From people who have sustained life-altering injuries to the families of people who have lost their lives to tragic accidents, Lyons and Simmons treat their clients' problems as if they are their own.

"I never stop thinking about what needs to be done to help put our clients into the position where they are able to move on in their lives. You can't undo the original wrong, but you can help them regain some of what has been taken from them emotionally and financially," says Lyons.

Many of the firm's cases frequently involve shining a light on corporate negligence, and pushing for changes to industry practices, regulations, and policies that will prevent others from experiencing future tragedies.

"We usually come up against corporations or institutions that are represented by a team of big-firm lawyers whose primary legal strategy is simply to outlast and overpower you," says Simmons. "That strategy doesn't work on us. We will never back down from a fight, and no one will ever outwork us."
